Psychological Characteristics

Personality:

- Fearless
- Creative
- Has great determination for treasures
- Calm during intense situations
- Every bad decision is a lesson for him rather than overthinking his choices
- Overthinker at core, but has managed to overcome that
- Risk taking
- Executor
- Extrovert
- Confident

Motivations:

- He loves exploring different places
- Motivated by his uncle's creativity, he was a farmer who loved singing and writing songs. This influenced his love for creativity, and he always wanted to do something out of the box
- Treasure hunting cartoons, History topics covering treasures, adventure stories and comics of treasure hunters in his childhood helped him discover treasure hunting
- Decoding locations using critical thinking, thinking out of the box while solving puzzles, and finding treasures in real life give him a sense of pride

Strengths:

- Fearless
- Confident
- Creativity
- Risk taking
- Passionate for treasures
- Treats bad experiences as a learning rather than grieving
- Calm during intense situations
- Curiosity
- Funny
- Improvise in high-pressure situations
- Critical thinking
- Great at calming down his wife during intense situations

Weaknesses:

- Avoids asking for favours
- Masking emotions
- Burden of expectations

Emotional State:

- He suppresses his emotions because he believes his wife relies on him to stay composed, and showing vulnerability would make her feel unsafe or hopeless.
- He believes he fears nothing, but deep down, he fears being powerless to save the person he loves most, discovering that he is not as fearless or in control as he believes.
- He is jolly by nature

Goals:

- His ambition is not to stop hunting for treasures until he dies

Conflict Resolution:

- He handles conflicts calmly by analysing the situation
- He knows panicking during an intense situation would lead to chaos

Values and Beliefs:

- He believes he's a leader and accepts responsibilities rather than running away from them
- He values his quality time with his friends and family when he's not hunting for treasures, but when he's hunting for treasure, he prioritises his task first
- He believes that it's easy to get on a journey, but difficult to continue it
- He believes everyone can improve; Everything depends on your intentions
- He believes that being happy is the best thing you can do for yourself, and if that includes embarrassing yourself, then do it without hesitation.

- He doesn't value being too philosophical unless needed in situations like conflict resolution or coming up with a topic of discussion that requires deep thinking

Relationships:

- He treats his friends and family as a priority when spending quality time with them
- He doesn't consider anyone to be his enemy, just that they are a little deviated from their path, and if he can help them with something except for his self-respect and dignity, he will

Decision-Making Style:

- He prioritises structure over chaos, but when things start getting chaotic, and he has less time to think, he prefers his intuition
- He is more of a structured man as he's a leader, and people expect from him rather than him expecting things from others.

Quirks and Habits:

- He has a habit of cracking knuckles

Character Arc (Optional):

- He was totally fearless at first, and then, when he realised how powerless he was, he was unable to help his wife out while she was on the verge of dying during the adventure
- This humbled him and made him realise his vulnerability
- He changed his approach towards his wife and started being more vulnerable than before

Backstory

He was born into a single-parent family and grew up as his mother's only child. His father was an army officer who was martyred during the Indo-Pak War(1971) when he was almost 1 year old. His mother raised him with her farming family, which consisted of her brother, mother, and father. He had a great childhood, where he used to help his family with farming; a little mischievous at times; listened to all kinds of stories, but was fond of the Adventure genre; loved the history subject more than other subjects in his school, especially the ancient treasures. He looked up to his uncle, who was a farmer and a singer, who used to write songs for joy and used to sing them while farming. This was inspirational enough for him to do something out of the box, something he's passionate about. He had a great bond with his uncle, and they were more like best friends than uncle-nephew. During his graduation with a Bachelor of Arts in History, He used to watch movies in the theatre and mostly opted for movies that show an adventure or movies that focus on treasure hunting. He was an expressive guy, almost vulnerable with anyone, but a time came when he was heartbroken, his mother and uncle had an accident, leading to their death. He cried for hours and was not able to accept the death of his mother and uncle. He knew he had to move on to help his grandparents with farming and finish his graduation. He made sure that his grandparents never felt what he was going through by temporarily masking emotions; taking responsibility for some time, which led to permanent changes.
